Circuit weekly notices for Sunday 20th September 2026

Dear friends,

The heatwaves of the summer, and the dryness of the land around us as we travelled and worked brought our culpability and vulnerability in relation to our climate home. The stress and difficulty for many in their work or in their own personal health have been evident as part of the backdrop to all of this. We've been given in a significant but small way comparably to other worse effected nations, a picture of what happens when we pollute and consume rather than making allowance for restoration, rest and recovery.

We know this well, and yet continue to find it hard to break from the cycle. In T.S Eliot's poem, The Waste Land, the poet reflects on the aftermath of WW1 through the lens of an arid, dry and waterless land. The poem speaks of the deathliness of such a place and context, and yet in the honesty and starkness offers a note of promise. It is not dissimilar to sort of prophetic tradition that finds Ezekiel picturing a valley of dry bones, or meets us in Jesus' words to his disciples in John 14, as he prepares to meet his own death, and yet still speaks of promise, hope and life.

How are we to hear and respond to these prophetic messages we receive and see around us? How might we imagine adapting, changing, turning our lives to better orientate ourselves around God's purposes for that which is life-giving, sustainable and nourishing? How might life come to us in the valley or in the upper room as we seek to serve God and follow Jesus in all that lies ahead for us?

With every blessing, Dan

(Letter from District Chair, Revd Dr Dan Haylett, taken from the South West Peninsula September E-News)
